"ONE BIG UNION" IS PREACHED TO RAILROAD MEN

Raid on William Z. Foster Headquarters Reveals Widespread Propaganda.

ACTION FOLLOWS WRECK

Ditching of Michigan Central Express and Death of Two Trainmen Laid to Plotters, Identity of Whom Is Unknown; Disorders in Many Centers.

By Associated Press

CHICAGO Aug 21—Early morning examination of papers seized in a raid last night on the offices of the Trades Union Educational League, which is headed by William Z Foster, who led the last steel strike and who recently was deported from Colorado as one of the foremost radical leaders of the country, bared widespread "one big union" propaganda among railroad workers and gave valuable information concerning a systematic series of radical meetings in rail centers according to States Attorney Crowe

No arrests were made but a long list of names of radical leaders was unearthed Mr Crowe announced

The attorney's investigation began after receipt there of the report of the Michigan Central wreck at Gary Ind in which two men were killed and two injured and the discovery of two sticks of dynamite on the Pennsylvania tracks.

Foster was said to be at Joliet Ill, where it was reported he spent several days after he was ordered out of Colorado by state authorities Railroad officials said that the Michigan Central express had been deliberately ditched. Spikes were removed from ties and rails loosened they said The express was running five hours late and an hour ahead of one of the fastest New York-Chicago limited It was believed the plotters planned to wreck the passenger train

The raid on Foster's headquarters was planned after turned communication with authorities in other railroad centers where disorders have occurred and where meetings of railroad men have been addressed by radical leaders

Reports of a dozen meetings addressed by Foster in cities of the Middle West were received, the state's attorney said

CHICAGO, Aug. 21—Disorders continued to flare in the rail shop centers during the early hours of the eight week, dispute peace negotiations at New York and assurances of chiefs of the Big Four that no sympathetic strike of train employes impended.

While Michigan Central detectives were investigating the Gary Ind wreck, in which two of the train crew were killed yesterday violence broke out anew at scattering places On the Atlantic side new disorders occurred at Columbia, S. C where 11 men brought in to work in the shops of the Southern Railway were attacked by strike sympathizers Hostilities broke out again in San Bernardino, Cal where four men employes of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe shops were attacked and beaten Shots were exchanged by guards and an unknown man in the Rio Grande Western yards at Burnham, Colo

Hurrying to Kansas City, following a new riot in the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific shops Governor Allen of Kansas gave Mayor Harry Burton 24 hours in which to restore order threatening to send troops if the situation did not improve

WEST NEWTON LOSS PLACED AT $300,000

Fourteen Buildings Destroyed By Blaze in Heart of Business Section.

WATER SUPPLY RUNS LOW

By Associated Press

WEST NEWTON Aug 21- The fire which swept the West Newton business district Saturday night and which was not completely extinguished until noon Sunday wrought a total loss of approximately $300 000 Insurance adjusters made calculations

Fourteen buildings including several houses were consumed A score of buildings were damaged State police and constables patrolled the burned area Fire companies from a dozen adjacent cities and towns aided the local force and at least ten firemen sustained minor injuries The fire started in an unoccupied garage

Although several firemen were overcome by smoke and several were burned while fighting the flames, none were seriously injured Two members of the West Newton fire company, David Woodward and Charles Chambers suffered burns about the head and also from effects of smoke Two members of the Monessen company suffered from smoke

Trains Nos 14 and 65 on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad whose tracks run directly through the heart of the blazing section were held up for several hours because of the flames

The city water supply ran low the drain on the reservoir being so heavy that when the flames were under control one foot of water remained in it Visiting companies also had trouble getting their hose on the plugs the hose for the most part being too big This trouble was soon adjusted, however

Buildings completely destroyed include the office building and store of the Pittsburg Coal Company the Abraham clothing store R H Stevenson's clothing store residence of A F Pinkovitz Paul Cullen undertaking establishment "Gypsy Nesbert general store A & P Tea Company store Charles Affales store residence of Mrs Jennie Jones residence of Mrs Henderson residence of Mrs McCrail and a building owned by the Verbet estate

A strong wind swept the fire from the garage to adjoining buildings and in 15 minutes after the conflagration was discovered it was beyond the control of the local fire fighting patrol Some of the companies responding had difficulty crossing the bridge over the Youghiogheny river

MOUNT PLEASANT FIREMEN'S STRIKE IS CALLED OFF

Chief Gearhart Notifies Burgess Men Are Ready for Call to Duty.

MEETING TUESDAY NIGHT

Business of "Utmost Importance" to Be Considered, Says Notice Sent to Members of Department; Chief Takes Truck to West Newton Blaze.

Special to The Courier

MOUNT PLEASANT Aug 21 The strike of the Volunteer Fire Department called Friday in protest against the action of District Attorney N A Cort and the state police in closing games of chance at the firemen's club and arresting members of the department is off Following a meeting of the firemen Saturday evening Chief Arthur Gearhart notified Burgess William M Overholt that he then were ready for call to duty any time

A meeting of the department has been called for Tuesday evening, 8 o'clock to consider business of the utmost importance What the nature of the business to be handled is not divulged in the notice

The action of the firemen has terminated Burgess Overholt's efforts of attempting to form a new department This action was completed if the strike had continued into this week it was said During Saturday It was said upwards of 15 men volunteered to serve on a new department Among them was I B Swartz who for a number of years was the head of the department Others came Sunday, not knowing that the strike had been called off

Members of the regular volunteer fire department including Chief Arthur Gearhart responded to the call for aid in the fire at West Newton Saturday which might have wiped out 14 buildings and caused a loss of $300 000 The chief drove the hose truck to the scene Sitting beside him was the regular driver Jesse Hallinger

Besides the chief there were a number of the department members and a number of citizens not connected with the fire department who helped and their aid to assist to no small degree Most of the water in the hose however remained in them

The action of the volunteers in taking the fire truck out is in the face of the fact that they failed to turn out for a fire in town Saturday morning because of the strike was the topic for discussion Sunday and today

HAVE A PURPOSE, AND STICK

Admittedly Hard Lesson to Learn, but It Means Success to Those Who Master It.

Did you ever realize that it is not an easy thing to concentrate? If you don't believe this shut your eyes right now and try to think for five minutes absolutely on one subject. It may be that you will choose dollars, or doughnuts, or ducks. But if at the end of five minutes you can truthfully say that never once did your mind wander from the definite subject which you chose you're a wonder.

It is just the same with our actions. It is the unusual person who can stick to one purpose until it is fully accomplished. So many other things, apparently just as important, interfere.

Those who have learned this hard lesson are the most successful—Thomas Edison, Mme. Curie, Luther Burbank, each show of what the human mind is capable when it thinks on one set of facts.

We probably could not equal them if we did think, for, along with their power of concentration, are unusual talents, but the point is this: We all have some degree of possibility within. We all feel an interest in some special thing. Why not think seriously upon it? We're a great deal richer than we sometimes think we are. It pays to mind our own possibilities.

"As a man thinketh so is he," is no mere figure of speech. It is a psychological truism. A man's thoughts, his ideas, are the great determinants of all his behavior.

That man who fears to use his own mind is stumbling over an imaginary obstacle on the road to making good. The man who succeeds is the man who thinks he can. "Success comes in cans, failures in can'ts."—Chicago Industrial Research Laboratories.

Daily Fashion Hint

PRETTY FROCK

Part of the yoke extends to make part of each sleeve in this frock of navy blue Georgette. The rest of the sleeve is cut in one piece with the frock itself. Pleats from the shoulder to the hem are attractive and the girdle, trimmed with self-material rose adds a bit of fluffiness to the otherwise severely straight silhouette.

Grim Reaper

MISS MAY E. HACKNEY.

NEWS OF DAY AT SCOTTDALE BRIEFLY TOLD

Coach Bullick Expected Tomorrow to Take Charge of Football Squad

LEAVE SOON FOR CAMP

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTDALE, Aug. 21—Coach Bullick of the Scottdale High School is expected to arrive in Scottdale tomorrow to take charge of the football squad that is preparing to go into camp at Hutch Yaun on Wednesday for 10 days of intensive training. It has been stated that Scottdale is to lose three star players and this will make the new members hustle to play the football that is required of Scottdale and hold a record that will compare favorably with that of last year. Preparations are being made to have 25 men attend the camp. The schedule for this year includes Johnstown, Norwin, Latrobe Uniontown, Vandergrift and Connellsville.

Service Company Home.

The Service Company of the 110th Regiment arrived home from Mount Gretna Saturday night.

Infant Dies.

Naomi Jean, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. McGee of this place, died Thursday. Interment was made in the Scottdale Cemetery.

Mrs. C. W. Phillips and children of Birmingham, Ala., are here visiting with Mr. and Mrs. W. W. McWilliam.

Expert Added to State Bee Force

Conforming to its usual plan of forging to the front, the Pennsylvania Extension Department has seen the need of development in the bee industry of Pennsylvania, and has recently secured the services of an up-to-date man on bee culture. George H. Rea has been secured as extension apiarist. Mr. Rea is a man of broad experience and comes to the department with strong recommendations from the United States Department of Agriculture.

C. L. Rumberger, county agent, has had inquiries concerning this branch of the county's agriculture, and will stand ready to aid all honey producers. Mr. Rea has already met with a number of the state's honey producing associations, and many new plans of operation have been adopted through suggestions.

The harvesting of honey, preventing late fall swarms, and getting the bees ready for winter storage are timely subjects.

A CLASH OF WITS

An Irish joker entered a shop and asked for a yard of milk. The shopkeeper was ready for him; he dipped his finger in the measure and drew a line of milk three feet long on the counter. "There ye are," he said.

Pat was rather taken aback at this, but recovering from his surprise he asked, 'How much is it?'

"Eight pence," said the shopkeeper.

"All right," said Pat cheerfully. "Roll it up an' O'll take it."

Something In This.

Sailor—The navy's got it all over the army when it comes to speed.

Soldier—The devil it has! How do you make that out?

Sailor—The navy is always ready to move at a moment's notice.

Soldier—Well what of that? Isn't—

Sailor—And it takes weeks to set the army in motion.

Practice Makes Perfect.

"I've been in the penitentiary 20 years mum. What good would it do me to get out?"

"You could begin life over again," said the sympathetic prison visitor.

"Could a piano player quit tickling the ivories for 20 years and begin right where he left off, mum?"

"I suppose not."

"Neither could a burglar.

His Trip Back.

"Your husband is quite enthusiastic over his back to the soil idea," remarked the neighbor woman.

"Yes," snapped his wife, "but the only chance John ever will have of getting back to the soil will be when the undertaker takes him there."

Caged.

Mrs. Crawford—I don't see how she's going to benefit by having her husband sent to jail.

Mrs. Crabshaw—She admits that she won't get any money out of him, but she'll have the satisfaction of knowing where he is nights.

MONDAY EVENING, AUG. 21, 1922.

ASSURING SUCCESS OF THE REPUBLICAN TICKET.

In re-electing Earl Huston, chairman, and Mrs J B Adams vice-chairman the Republican County Committee has done more than give deserving recognition to leaders who proved their faith by their works as well as demonstrated their peculiar fitness and ability in the positions they have already filled with so much credit to themselves and the party In continuing them at their posts of duty means that the county committee has taken the first step in assuring the success of the party's ticket at the November election

The action having been taken with complete unanimity by those authorized to make the selection, shows that the central committeemen and committeewomen of the county have unquestioned confidence in the capability and efficiency of Mr. Huston and Mrs Adams Their re-election shows, too, that the district workers of both sexes have the mind and purpose to give the forth-coming campaign the same degree of faithfulness and application they know will be the rule at county headquarters

Furthermore, the enthusiasm and earnest effort in behalf of success at the polls will not be limited to sections of the county or to a part of the ticket. Instead, systematic plans will be made for a thorough organization and canvas of all the districts in order to get out the full party vote and have it cast for the whole ticket

Secure in the knowledge that the Republican party in the county and state is united to resist the desperate tactics of the Democrats to create dissensions as their only possible hope of success, the Republican workers of the county, under the stimulus of Saturday's very remarkable gathering, will enter upon the campaign with that vigor, determination and zeal which will be worthy of the cause.

No plans are proposed, and none will be proposed, to stage a spectacular or furor campaign, but system and method will be employed with a quiet earnestness and directness of appeal to voters which will make failure of the ticket impossible The essential in the conduct of the campaign will be a complete organization of each election district In this activity the central committeemen are the vital factors as the units of the county committee Upon them rests the obligation to perform several very important duties The chiefest are. First, To see that every eligible Republican becomes duly qualified to cast his or her vote by being assessed or registered and paying taxes Second, To get every Republican voter to the polls on election day

In the race times when the full Republican ticket has failed of election in Fayette county, the failure, in almost all cases, has been traceable to the inattention or indifference of committeemen in seeing that voters become qualified and are at the polls on election day In districts where the importance of these things is not understimated, increasing instead of decreasing Republican majorities have been recorded

Fayette county being normally Republican by a large majority the success of any Democratic candidate becomes more or less a reflection upon Republican committeemen who, through indifference or otherwise allow election day to come around without having organized their districts more completely than their Democratic opponents have done

That is not going to happen anywhere in the county this year Impressed as they are with the vital necessity of maintaining the Republican party in control in the state and national legislatures and governments, in order that post-war readjustments in business and industry may be safely concluded, and sound principles — policies be firmly rooted no theorists experimenters and doctrines or worse be given a place in the governments, the members of the [illegible] County Committee will be inspired by the harmonious and enthusiastic meeting of Saturday to line up the voters with invincible strength at the November election.

This achievement will be sought not alone as a duty in a time of grave emergency in the life of the nation but as proof that the heritage left to posterity by the Republicans of Fayette by the much lamented leader "Will" Crow, is being valued as highly as his memory is being cherished.

Straight American Neutrality

Boston Transcript.

In sharp contrast to certain anti-British resolutions adopted at a mass-meeting of Irish republic sympathizers at Philadelphia last Sunday, was the following resolution of the Ancient Order of Hibernians adopted by their national board on the same day at the Hibernians' annual conference at Atlantic City

The attitude of the Ancient Order of Hibernians in America, in the unhappy division of the Irish people, should be expressed in sentiments of solicitous hope for an early cessation of the strife, and we refrain from obstruding our opinions or criticisms lest the harsh discord be transmitted to our side of the ocean although we are confident that a stable government resting upon the will of the majority must eventually rule and that violent rejection of the popular will is alike incompatible with prosperity at home or respect abroad

While this utterance leaves no doubt about the sober convictions of the Hibernians, it is nevertheless a model of dignity and self-restraint. It expresses just the attitude which any intelligent and patriotic American might be expected to assume, and does it with a temperance and propriety such as men of Hibernian extraction are not always credited with There is absolutely nothing of hyphenated Americanism about it for it bespeaks straight American neutrality in Old World disputes It constitutes a fitting and an effective rebuke to the partisan and trouble-breeding attitude of those Americans of alien birth or antecedents who would indeed "transmit to our side of the ocean the harsh discord" of the land of their forefathers and it is a rebuke which could come more appropriately from no other quarter

Just Folks

Edgar A. Guest.

ALL THAT SHE ASKS.

All that she asks is a kindly word
And a bit of your patience too,
A bit of the praise which once she heard
When your love was fresh and new
A fond caress when you come at night,
And her eyes will gleam with the old delight.

It is man who fashions a woman's life,
Shapes it happy or sad
And we learn of the husbands from the wife
Know him for good or bad
For her face is an open book which lives
The world the tale of the life she lives

Day by day in the house she slaves,
Keeping the home for him,
With the work to do and the babes to rear
While the charm of her youth grows dim
But all that she asks from the man of old
A kindly word and the evening kiss

Oh you snarlish and churlish men,
Sudden and quick to rage,
Changing the home to a tiger den,
In this a good wife's wage?
Why not give her the joys of life
And make her happy to be your wife?

It isn't the money you make or spend
Or the great deeds you may do
On which the charms of her life depend
But happiness it is with you
And all she asks through the years is this
Your kindly thought and your evening kiss

THE LITTLE CLOTHES LINE.

The little clothes line by the kitchen door
My mother stretched it once when I was young,
And there the garments which the baby wore
Each morning very carefully she hung

Square bits of flannel fluttered in the breeze
White slips whose very delicate and small
Long flowing dresses and the glad bootees
A little blanket and a knitted shawl

Then came the day when mother took it down
And we forgot what symbols flutter ed here
We'd grown to breast the current of the town
To fight for conquest and to stand to care

Ten years ago she smiled and said to me
I want a little clothes line by the door
And there she hung for all the world to see
The various bits of raiment which he wore

Even the ragman on his alley round
Knew by the symbols fluttering on that line,
That there a little baby would be found
And day by day he saw that girl grow slim

Then boyhood came and called our babe away
Muscled him strong and turned his cheeks to brown
Gave him the strength to run and romp and play
And then she took the little clothes line down

Today I sat beside her bed and saw
Spite the sweet smile of motherhood once more
When I go up again, she said to me
I'll want a little clothes line by the door

Holmes: It's quite simple. The dress couldn't possibly have gotten so ragged and dirty in that baby carriage.

Tribute of Republican County Committee to Former Chairman Crow

The following is the full text of the tribute of respect to the late United States Senator William L Crow, former chairman of the Fayette County Republican Committee prepared and offered by John L. Gans and unanimously adopted at the meeting of the committee Saturday afternoon.

WILLIAM EVANS CROW

Successively served as member secretary and chairman of the Fayette County Republican Committee member and chairman of the State Republican Committee and as district attorney of Fayette county, State Senator and United States Senator

These office and distinctions were willingly bestowed upon Senator Crow in merited recognition of his unchanging faith fidelity and loyalty in the service of the Republican party, his consistent and firm adherence to its principles, and his inherent gift graces and abilities as a leader of men

Under his superb and universally acknowledged leadership his wise counsels and skilled direction, the Republican party achieved victories in the county and state which will forever remain historic as the free expression of the popular will as to men and issues

Coincident with his leadership of the party its members from time to time advanced him to posts of increasing responsibility and honor in the service of the state Those bestowals were not alone a continuing measure of the faith of the home folks in the sagacity of his leadership, admiration of him as a man of rare qualities, and of confidence in his capabilities as a representative of the people They became, in fact, the part the Republicans of Fayette county had in the preparation of Senator Crow for that larger sphere of usefulness which had been his boyhood's ambition to occupy and to which he had every right—and most of all the right of eminent fitness—to aspire

While bowing in humble submission to the Divine Will in removing Senator Crow from the scene of his diversified activities, and lamenting sadly the irreparable loss of their matchless leader at the very threshold of a still more distinguished career the Republicans of Fayette county cherish fondly and with solemn pride the fact that they were helpful in small part in aiding Senator Crow to achieve the form if not privileged to enjoy the substance, of the honor he held to be the highest he had hoped to attain

In worthily seeking this and other honors which came to him as the birthright of his service to his party and the people Senator Crow was ruled by that exquisite unselfishness of spirit and purpose which was the predominant trait of a man to whom service for and loyalty to his friends and the party was the controlling motive of his life.

"Out of a magnanimity which only a great heart like that of Senator Crow could have shown he shared with his party and the folks back home the greatest as well as the least of the honors conferred upon him and to the workers in the ranks he never he stated to accord unstinted credit for every success of himself or the party

With an abiding sense of appreciation for having been permitted to thus graciously and liberally share these honors to their former chairman in having enjoyed the highly prized privilege of serving under for and with him, as a slight, but wholly inadequate measure of their respect and esteem for all in his life character and relations to them that entitled him to be exalted to places of responsibility and trust, as meager proof of their affectionate regard for him as a warm-hearted, generous and self-sacrificing friend and as an earnest of the sincere desire to hold their associations with him in deepest reverence and fondest remembrance, the members of the Fayette County Republican Committee, in convention assembled this 19th day of August, 1922 request that this minute be entered of record in the proceedings, a copy transmitted to the family of Senator Crow and to the Republican State Committee and published in the Republican newspapers of the county

Averice Heads List of Causes Crime in State

HARRISBURG, Aug 21—Avarice and all human failings as a cause of crime for which arrests were made by the Pennsylvania State Police during 1921 Of a total of 13,908 arrests covered in a report for the year, made public here today, 6 556 were listed under this heading

The police report bases crime on human emotions and lists most of the offenses under headings suggestive of the fundamental traits responsible Avarice covers the various forms of theft and robbery Under the heading recklessness are listed 4 289 arrests which were the result largely of violations of the automobile laws. Alcoholic stimulation was responsible for 1,270 arrests The other headings and the totals are Drugs 4, lust 627 revenge 1,026, sub-normal mentality, 142

More single than married men were arrested and for most of those taken into custody the offense was their first There were 7 111 single men and 5 767 married men arrested Of the total 11,798 were first offenders, 178 second offenders and 932, third offenders The report lists 12 162 as white and 746 black There were 12 202 men and 706 women

The youngest offenders were 10 years old and there were 37 of these The oldest was 80 There was only one of this age although there were two of 78 and two of 76

The most dangerous years apparently were between 20 and 30 There were more offenders—618—of the age of 24 than of any other age The 30-year mark was second with 579

Pittsburg Coal Operators Firm

PITTSBURG Aug 21—With about one-quarter of the striking mine workers in the Pittsburg or Western Pennsylvania, district back at work or authorized to go back, and the two chief operator associations here—the Pittsburg Coal Producers and the Freeport Thick Vein associations—continuing to refuse to meet the mine workers to negotiate supplemental agreements based upon the Cleveland settlement, the bituminous coal strike situation is expected this week to settle into an endurance contest between the organized operators and the organized mine workers

In the ranks of the operators it was said there was no present indication that either of the two associations, as such, would accept the Cleveland settlement

They have declared they will oppose any settlement, including the "check off" of the system by which coal companies in the past have deducted union dues and assessments from miners pay, but which all other operators in the district under the Cleveland settlement obligate themselves to continue

Picnic at Flatwoods.

The annual picnic of the Flatwoods Baptist Sunday school will be held Saturday at Flatwoods park on a large grove with ball company and base diamond points The picnickers brought well filled baskets and a good time is assured.

The Helpful Caddy

At one of the New England golf clubs a young lady who is very popular with her caddies arranged a match with an old woman who is proud of her mediocre ability The young lady, a good player, wished to lose the game out of courtesy and for social reasons Her opponent was in even worse form than usual and the girl grew desperate She seemed unable to prevent her opponent from losing Finally she told her caddy that she would like to lose the game. "Ah, miss" he muttered, "I know that. Here I've been standing on her ball every time it gets in the long grass"

Butterflies Eye-Spots

What do the eye-spots on butterflies wings mean? The naturalists say frankly 'We do not know' It is thought that these eye-spots may have some utilitarian application They form one of the most intricate of all natural designs. The fact that butterflies have been captured with their eye-spots pierced as if from the attack of birds, has been used as an argument in favor of the view that they must be "protective markings" imitating eyes because birds strike at the eyes of their victims But this suggestion is hardly regarded as satisfactory Among butterflies the most striking examples of eye-spots are found on the under surface of the wings.

FRANCE LEADS WORLD IN ARMY EXPENSE CUT

Has Largest Proportionate Reduction of Military Expenditures, Official Claim.

France "in spite of the heavy burdens which the care of insuring her safety and of fulfilling her international obligations has imposed," is leading the world in the proportionate reduction of military expenditures, according to an official memorandum respecting the military budgets of 11 leading countries, compiled by the French government.

Italy, with an increase of 800 per cent in her war budget over the year 1913 14, stands far ahead on the list, the memorandum points out, while France, with an increase of but 62 per cent is at the bottom Other countries the compilation shows, range in the following order

Japan, 200 per cent, Spain 275 per cent, Norway, 105 per cent, Great Britain 181 per cent, United States, 174 per cent, Sweden, 165 per cent, Holland, 148 per cent, Denmark 125 per cent, and Switzerland 72 per cent

Elaborating upon the French reduction the memorandum adds that in 1913 the military branch absorbed fully one-third of the general budget, or 1 057,574 736 francs from a total of 5 060,000,000 In 1922 with the military expenditures increased by various international obligations such as the maintenance of troops on the Rhine and elsewhere the defense arm required but one-fifth of the general appropriations, or 5 058 000,000 francs from a total of approximately 25 000,000,000 for the entire government

The military expenditures of the five great powers based on a gold franc standard, are set forth in the memorandum as follows United States 6,100,000 000 Great Britain 4 800,000 000 Japan, 1 900 000,000, France 1 525 000 000 Italy 970,000,000

WIFE DONS BOXING GLOVES

Boston Woman Entered Fight Arena When Husband Became Ill

When her husband fell ill and the responsibility of caring for him and their three children fell upon her shoulders twenty-three year old Mrs Lillie Graves of Boston Mass had a fight on her hands And getting a pair of boxing gloves she literally began to fight for a living

Since then she has become so capable with her mitts that she is quite a card in boxing events and has issued a challenge to any woman in the world at her weight Lillie looks less like a female prize fighter than a demure school girl But how she can battle Men who have faced her testify that there's dynamite in her left hook

"I want to be the woman champion prizefighter of the world Mrs Graves says It may seem strange to many women that I should be so interested in boxing but I have always loved it I was brought up in the country and always played baseball and basketball when attending high school I always had a keen desire to become a wrestler or boxer"

PROCURE BUTTER FROM FISH

Indians of British Columbia and Alaska Have a Never Failing Supply of the Delicacy.

It is not generally known that the Indians of British Columbia and Alaska obtain their butter from a fish known to scientists as the oolichan. It is from six to eight inches long and very fat

Every summer this fish comes from the ocean up the rivers to spawn, like salmon Millions are taken in nets. First they are thrown into rough bins made of cedar logs where they lie for a few days to soften in the sun

Then they are placed in great cedar vats of boiling water, the latter being heated by hot stones which are dropped into them This primitive method of heating has been found to produce better butter than when the fish are boiled in the more orthodox fashion

As the oil rises to the top it is skimmed off It hardens quickly and has the appearance of lard Beautifully white it is not easy to detect it from butter there being not the slightest odor of fish about it The Indians pack it in water tight cedar boxes making enough of this fish butter during the summer months to last them throughout the year

Joke on Householder

A prominent Cleveland reports the Plain Dealer, of that city, was awakened in the night by mysterious noises from the lower floor and going down found a fellow filling his pockets with the silver on the sideboard

The Cleveland man leaped on the burglar and speedily reduced him to the "got enough" stage Then he let the man up and asked him what he meant by adopting such a disreputable profession The fellow pleaded his youth and drink and bad company and claimed it was his very first offense

Whereupon, the householder after exacting a promise from the prowler that he would give up his nefarious calling opened the door and let him go

"Perhaps that part of the adventure was all right," said the Cleveland man, "but, confound the fellow, I forgot all about making him take my silver out of his pockets

And for years that story clung to him.

Hugging Bargains for Protection.

The other morning when a heavy shower came up there was rather an amazing sight downtown About every other one was bearing a hat bag and she carried it in front of her across her bosom, in sort of chest protector fashion. "What does all that mean?" asked a Here Man, as he stood waiting for a car

"It's a millinery sale" replied a woman near him "I mean, there is a big millinery sale downtown today, and about every other woman who came shopping bought a bargain hat Now they are afraid they'll get their bargains wet, and holding them up to their chests like that is the only way they are sure of keeping them directly under their umbrellas"—Springfield Union.

Long Period of Mourning.

Mourning fashions in some of the foreign quarters go to lengths that to the average American seem unreasonable. For instance in the Sicilian quarters when the father of a family dies, his wife and daughters are expected to dress in mourning indefinitely No matter how young a girl is she is expected to wear dead black all through her girlhood until she is engaged to be married Of course the rule is not closely observed, but no girl breaks it even with the consent of her mother without coming in for some criticism The crepe veils of wearing mourning are quite usual.—New York Sun

Sir Walter de Frece is said to be one of the best raconteurs in English clubdom One of his latest is of the man who accosted another in a West End saloon bar "Pardon but you are Dr Smith aren't you?" he inquired The man addressed denied that that was his name "But, surely," said the first speaker "you attended my wife?" "I did not was the answer "nor am I a doctor "Then you must have a double!" "I thank you I said the man, "I will"—Argonaut

ODD BELIEFS ABOUT AMERICA

In the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries, Country Was Held to Be a Wonderland.

The Spaniards were not the only race to visualize the New world as a wonderland of rich mines and beautiful cities. Throughout the Sixteenth and for the first half of the Seventeenth centuries adventurers of various races were fully as credulous

As early as 1700 the belief that the continent was peopled by the descendants of the lost tribes of Israel was asserted

Then there was Norumbega, as the Penobscot river in Maine was called. This name also included the mythical kingdom extending from the coast in the head of Penobscot, with the fabulous city of Norumbega located where Bangor now stands Dwarfs and giants lived there in much splendor, and Champlain went to investigate and found the Abnaki wigwams

All these various yarns fell in nicely with John Law's scheme, popularly known as "the Mississippi company." In the literature and maps booming that enterprise Louisiana was represented as being embarrassingly crowded with rich mines

Mountains of gold and cities of wondrous loveliness, pearls and precious stones—all these were ever just over the horizon Not until after the French-Indian war did the people fully realize that their gold must be won from prairies and the forest, and their cities be built by their own hands.—Adventure Magazine

Immense Production

Some idea of the productivity of the volcanic soil of Hawaii may be had when it is stated that while there are only 109 310 acres devoted to sugar cane the annual average production of this area is 540,248 tons of sugar, while Cuba with a cane acreage of approximately 1,500,000 acres in harvest annually produces a yearly average of 3 500 000 tons of sugar It is claimed that in no part of the world are such improved and intensive cultural methods used as in Hawaii.

CINCINNATI YOUNGSTERS MAKE FANS FORGET ROUSH AND GROH

George Burns Is Playing the Best Game of His Career for the Cincinnati Reds.

Is Pat Moran the genial soul who led the Cincinnati Reds to the scandal stained world pennant of 1919 preparing to spring another winning team on the National league?

Quietly but effectively Patrick has been at work this season building up a new team and his efforts are beginning to bear fruit

He has half a dozen youngsters, all brought out by him, going like hot cakes and making the Red fans forget the discontented Roush and the diminutive Heinie Groh.

Caveney and Pinelli, the outstanding stars obtained from the coast, Couch Hargrave, Harper Fonseca, Donohue and other youngsters are coming through beyond the expectations of everyone except Pat George Burns is playing the game of his career Once more he is showing his worth as a ball player—his worth in addition to his there playing have made more money for owner Comiskey since the beginning of the 1922 schedule than they did all last year and the season is only half over

Baseball, with the crowds in the American league parks from day to day bearing witness, is not losing its hold on the public If anything the national pastime has increased in favoritism as a source of amusement for hundreds of thousands of baseball fans What is true in the American league is also true in the National

A plethora of home runs, the "lively ball," the reconstruction of 75 per cent of the clubs in the two big leagues, and lastly the desire of the fan populace to be out in the open air have all had a part in herding flocks of golden eagles to the vaults of the owners

When Philadelphia, with two floundering second division clubs, turns out 22,000 patrons on a damp Saturday afternoon to watch the Athletics play the White Sox, when Detroit packs 31,000 spectators in a 25,000 capacity park, when Cleveland fans to the number of 33,000 see a double-header on the Fourth of July, and an average of 25,000 on Sunday and when the Sox, with only three or four old stars left draw to the gate in three months what they did in six months in a previous year then baseball must be a good business

HURLERS ARE NOT SO YOUNG

Average Age of Pitchers in Major Leagues Well Toward Twenty Eight—Babe Adams Leader.

The old chatter about youth being served is still in the air Yet out of the 70 leading pitchers of the big leagues 33 are over the thirty year mark and 28 will never see their twenty-fifth birthday Only nine are under twenty-five summers. Their average age scales well on toward twenty-eight with Babe Adams Walter Johnson and Grover Alexander leading the old age parade In length of service Adams leads with 19 seasons in professional baseball Johnson and Marquard have seen 17 and Alexander Coveleskie Tonty and Peter have played for 15 years

Of the 70 pitchers included in this survey 48 have played for more than ten seasons the average span of service being a bit over ten years A young arm and a young head are hardly as good as an old arm and an old head provided the arm is not too old

STORIES OF GREAT INDIANS

By Hinto Scott Watson

CHIEF QUANAH PARKER, "THE WHITE COMANCHE

ON FEBRUARY 23 1911 Chief Quanah Parker lay lying in his home, the White, house of the Comanches near Cache Okla When a white doctor had failed to save his life, Quanah the medicine man entered Placing his arm about the dying chief Quanah flapped his hands and imitated the call of the Great Eagle, the messenger of the Great Spirit. 'Father in Heaven this our brother is coming he prayed A moment later Quanah the son of a white mother a chief who had lived the white man's way for 45 years died an Indian

Quanah's mother was Cynthia Ann Parker, a white woman who had been captured by his father Nokoni The Wanderer. In 1835 when she was only twelve years old he bore him three children two sons and a daughter A son born in 1845 was given the name Kwaini, "fragrant When friends of the Parker family visited the Comanche camp to persuade her to return to civilization she said 'I am happy with my husband and children I have no desire to be anything but an Indian In 1860 Texas Rangers under Gov L S Ross attacked the Comanche camp killed Nokoni and captured Cynthia Ann Parker and her two-year-old daughter The sons escaped

When the 'White Indian' was restored to her people it brought her no joy for she mourned incessantly for the Indian camp and especially for her sons Soon afterwards during a council with the Comanches Texas army officers told young Quanah that Kwaina that his mother was still alive and they tried to induce him to make his home with her It was in vain The boy had never known any life but Indian life In 1864 Cynthia Ann Parker died following the death of her son

Quanah rose to the position of war chief of the Comanches and in the war with the Southern Plains tribes in 1874 he was the last to surrender When he did he encouraged his people in traveling the white man's road

In his last year Quanah brought his mother's body from Texas and buried it near his home Then he worked unceasingly to have a suitable memorial erected over the grave Finally congress appropriated $1,000 for that purpose and two weeks before Quanah died the monument was built The body of Quanah the chief of the Comanches was buried nearby and the white mother and her Indian son were reunited at last

Real Economy

Transparent animals are remarkable recent study of two larval eels which possess this peculiarity and which look much like those of the goldfish have just Washington seems to show the economic possibilities of living pigment is limited economy in personal decoration

In order that opaque animals the color marking are symmetrical on both sides of the body but this is not the case with the transparent eels When looked at from one side these eels appear to have seven large black spots arranged at nearly regular intervals along the length of its body, closer examination shows that in each case three spots are on the left side and four on the right Thus are irregularly spaced but in such a manner that on looking through the body all seven appear in a symmetrical row

Wireless Hour Signals

When a ship is approaching shore great caution is often necessary because of uncertainty as to the vessel's precise position It was some years ago that it was first proposed that wireless telegraphy be utilized to send hour signals over the sea round England to a distance of 200 or 300 miles from shore, in order that the captains of incoming ships might thus be enabled to rectify their chronometers to Greenwich time The government of Canada thereupon established a system of this kind at Camperdown near Halifax Every morning the exact hour is sent out over the sea so that all vessels furnished with receiving apparatus may pick up the true time from the air —Washington Star

Waste and Wet Lands Have Value

Waste and wet lands have their uses and under proper management can be made to yield a good return Drainage, which is always expensive, is often employed to transform land which would be available as a sanctuary for waterfowl, or for the production of fish or nut crops into tillable land in regions where there is already plenty of farming soil. The needs of many communities would be better served if the wet lands were developed naturally

MAY RESUME CORAL FISHING

Expected Revival of Industry as a Result of Systematic Exploration of the Banks

The coasts of Algiers and Tunis in Africa have long been famous for their production of coral but some years ago coral fishing on these coasts rapidly diminished until it was abandoned Now however this industry seems to be reviving in Algiers and it is expected that it will be resumed in Tunis A systematic exploration of coral banks has been under way and the best methods of collecting the coral have been discussed The old way which was very wasteful, consisted in the use of various forms of grapples combined with strong nets which were swept over the banks tearing delicate structures apart, and recovering but a small portion of the broken coral The employment of divers is advocated as more economical both in the quality of the harvest and the preservation of the banks Divers can descend to a depth of about 180 feet and good coral is seldom found at greater depths.

SILK AND LINEN STREET CLOTHES

General Smartness Features Costumes of These Materials Now So Popular.

SILK COAT ADDS TO OUTFIT

Garment Is Development of This Season Which Serves to Make Tone of Dressing of Women Reach Higher Level.

The summer street dress has come to be a work of art all in a class by itself. Today, as you walk along the street, notes a fashion writer in the New York Times, you are not impressed by the general dowdiness of female human nature, but you are quite overcome by the general smartness which the crowd as a whole represents. Not only are there a few high lights in the way of smart suits and dresses, but the common tenor of the crowd holds you spellbound with the air of fashionable attire that predominates.

It may be that all of the dresses that women are wearing have suddenly taken a leap as regards their character and tone. But certain it is that the street clothes have established a brand-new standard. Time was when women on the street or at functions where street clothes were demanded all looked more or less alike. There was a fixed standard from which it was not possible to deviate to any large extent. Now all that is changed in the most miraculous and interesting way. Every woman you meet is different from the last. Each one has something, it seems, that is original about the gown or suit she has chosen to wear. Each one seems bent upon exhibiting her own individuality to the full extent of her personal powers. And for these reasons, there has come about this subtle change in the appearance of the dressing of the crowd.

Then, among all of the existing good dressing, there stand out above all the rest certain spots that are even more beautiful than the rest and others which have about them that air which says "We shall lead the fashions of a coming season." It is interesting to notice them as you go about. Those with distinction above the ordinary find no difficulty in asserting their own. They are not by any means ornate nor overtrimmed with extra additions. They are, on the contrary, conspicuous for their extreme simplicity and the brilliance of perfection with which their designers have carried out the idea of the elimination of detail.

The silk coat is a development of this season which serves, more than any other one achievement, to make the general tone of the dressing of the women reach a much higher level. It is not so heavy that it can be called hot, but, on the other hand, it has that air of formality which so notably fits it for wear upon the street.

White Coat of Crepey Silk.

One of the newest of these coats happens to be made of white. Its material is one of those heavy, crepey silks which have about them so much body and so much character that they are fit to be classed in this connection with woolens of any variety, weight or weave from which these coats are made.

Then, because the weight of silk is so inconsequential a thing, it can afford to have a lining, and just here is where the chief beauty of the whole situation enters. For the linings, this season, are carrying about with them to their secluded roles a great deal of the style and distinction which is the portion of these modern coats. And again, just as is the case with the white silk coat, these newer wraps offer a fine opportunity for placing of the big, beautiful bands of hand-worked embroidery that play so conspicuous a part in giving the style and droop and hang to the coat once its lines have been perfected as a basic idea. The white coat, for instance, is supplied with a wide band of black embroidery along the bottom of the front panel, and that idea is repeated on the sleeves. Then the lining for this wrap is done in cherry-red crepe de chine of the very softest quality, so that glimpses of that hot and glorious color against the outer surface of black and its contrasting white make just the prettiest sort of a picture. And the dress worn under a wrap of this sort sinks into obscurity because of the beauty of the outer covering. It can be either a plain black dress or one of white that is designed quite without trimming, for the coat supplies all of the dash of decoration and color that could be desired.

Coats Match Dresses.

The costume suit, which was so loudly heralded in the fall has carried over into summer with all of its finest points to the fore, and it bids fair to be one of those things which, in the fall, we will cling to as an inspiration not to be foresworn.

One of the very latest ones is the long-waisted, short-peplumed coat. There is every attraction here of feminine grace and charm, and at the same time the suit, either with its coat or without it, has every attribute of dignity to carry along with it. The dress portion of this costume suit is made from a combination of that soft, cream-colored French cotton crepe, and the skirt is made from a lemon-yellow ratine. Now those two materials are, to be sure, only the foundations. Upon them are superimposed many bands and lines of embroidery done in stitches of mercerized cotton in colors of black, brown, sparkling red and white. On the blouse these hand-worked bands contain all of the colors, but when it comes to the skirt only the black and the white threads are used, and the same is true of the belt made of a shaped piece of the ratine. Then the coat is made of the same fabric that goes to make the skirt of the frock worn underneath it. And the little jacket is further embellished by bands of a dyed kolinsky fur carrying the softest of the darker tones of brown. The coat is lined then with a soft, cream-colored silk having a smooth surface which turns back on the collar and cuffs and shows becomingly against the neck and against the puffed sleeves of the cotton crepe which jut out underneath the wide cuffed sleeves. One nice thing about the skirt to this frock is the way it pleats in on the sides. This gives a sufficient amount of room for walking, and at the same time it keeps that trig, straight look.

Golden Brown Crepe.

Another dress designed for street wear and worn, indeed, by the very smart woman in New York was made of a golden brown crepe. The skirt had a straight panel at front and at back, while at the sides were these inserted sections of narrow side pleatings. At the base of the skirt the little pleats were tacked together so that the skirt puffed out above that point in a sort of harem fashion. Worn with this skirt there was a cape jacket with loose and flowing sleeves through which other puffed sleeves of a Russian blouse bodice were seen to protrude. This little bodice of white had lines of Russian embroidery in tones of yellow and brown marching around the collar and down the front, while the ends of the sleeves had frills over the hands peeping out from another band of the brightly colored Russian stitches.

Long-Waisted Jacket Made to Wear With Dress of White Cotton Crepe and Ratine.

It is wonderful to see how many women, and well dressed and good looking women, too, have adopted the Russian blouse for serious wear upon the street. And these blouses, when they are at their most attractive stages, are not made as adaptations of the original ones, but they are indeed those original models in their pristine state.

The draped dresses that are worn upon the street and at luncheons in the smart restaurants or shopping during the days that are not so hot, are perhaps the most graceful of all.

A Stick of Wood.

Tommy was deeply engrossed in the dictionary, and his brow was wrinkled in concentrated thought.

"Tommy," said his mother, "get me a stick of wood."

"Ah, mother," replied Tommy, the grammatical portion of your education has been sadly neglected. You should say: 'Thomas, my son, transport from that recumbent collection of combustible material on the threshold of this edifice one of those curtailed excrescences of defunct log.'"—Wheeler's Magazine.

Mrs. Enfield's Man

By CLARA DELAFIELD

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

"Free?" asked Mrs. Enfield tartly. "Believe me, Mrs. Reames, I never knew what freedom meant before. All my life I've worked for men—first for my old father, who was a regular tyrant, and then for Jim Enfield.

"Why, I couldn't call my soul my own so long as that man was in the house. It was cooking and cleaning, and darning his socks—he was as helpless as a baby, for all his viciousness—and cross words all the time. And then he went and left me."

"You poor thing," said her visitor. "But that's what we women have to put up with."

"He left me," sobbed Mrs. Enfield, "and that poor child there"—she pointed to her daughter Gladys, aged fifteen—"and wrote a letter saying he was tired of my tongue-lashing, and was never coming back. Me that had slaved for him! Me that couldn't call my soul my own while he was in the house!"

"I suppose there's no danger of his ever coming back after all these months, is there?" asked the visitor.

Mrs. Enfield's voice rose into a shrill scream. "Come back? Well, I'd just like to see him try it!" she answered. "I'd give him a tongue-lashing, as he had the impudence to call it. I'd let him know whether he could treat us that way or not, going off and abandoning us, and leaving me to work for our living."

"Suppose he came back rich?" suggested the other.

"Rich? Jim Enfield rich? That man couldn't save a penny even if he was man enough to get a job! But if it was to happen, I'd throw his money in his face. Never shall Jim Enfield set foot inside my doors again, rich or poor!"

"That's the way to talk, ma," said Gladys. "We're better off without a great hulking man to support."

"You hold your tongue, Glad," answered her mother sharply. "It's quite true what you say, but it ain't for you to abuse your father."

Gladys tossed her head.

"Anyway, when I see what he's done to you, ma, capturing your young love and then wrecking it, it makes me feel sore," she answered.

In spite of her attitude, Jane Enfield knew that there were times when she missed the presence of a man in the house. As a husband, Jim Enfield had been beneath contempt, but as a man he had his virtues. He could drive in nails and hammer things; he could fix taps and do odd jobs.

But Jim Enfield should never enter her home again. "Not if he crawled in dying on his bended knees, Gladys," she said. "I'm just living for the day when he comes back. Tongue-lashing? Huh!"

A few days later, when Mrs. Enfield was preparing supper Gladys rushed in, wild with excitement. "What d'you think, ma?" she asked. "Father's been seen in town!"

"Huh?" said Jane Enfield. "Let him try to come here, that's all! Glad, if he tries to force his way in you run for the policeman. And I'll—" she looked about her and snatched up a rolling-pin. "I guess I'm woman enough to hand him what he deserves," she said.

Suddenly rather uncertain footsteps were heard outside. They looked at one another and shivered. And then there came a tapping at the kitchen door. After a few moments of hesitation Gladys went and opened it.

Jim Enfield came in. He wore a very shabby suit of clothes, a battered hat was on the back of his head, and he glanced rather sheepishly from his wife to his daughter.

Then he advanced slowly and uncertainly, glancing askance at the rolling-pin in Jane Enfield's hand, and threw himself into a chair.

"Well, here we are again!" he said. "Had a mighty rough time, Jane, old girl! Been on the tramp six weeks since I lost my last job, and nearly dead. Guess I'll have to lay up for a spell before starting out to look for a job again.

"Hello, Glad! How's the school coming along? My, you're growing quite a big girl now, ain't you? Come and give your daddy a kiss!"

Gladys, advancing as if hypnotized, suddenly flung her arms around her father's neck and imprinted a succession of fervid kisses on his cheeks. Then she drew back and looked at her mother.

"Well? What are you staring at me like that for?" demanded Jane Enfield. "Hurry out to the corner store and get some ham for your father. And get a lettuce and a bottle of pickles—the kind he likes. You ought to know if any one does. Jim, I'll run upstairs and fix things up a bit. Watch the kettle and see it doesn't boil over."

She ran to him and put her head down on his shoulder. "You must rest up a while before looking for work, Jim," she said. "Poor boy, you must have had a rough time, Gladys!" She stopped the girl as she was going out of the door. "Go and get your father's slippers first, and then hurry to the store. My, Jim!" she continued, "it feels good to have a man in the house again!"

Diplomacy.

"When Mrs. Peckton lays down the law, do you acquiesce?"

"Yes," said Mr. Peckton, sighing, "as the diplomats do."

"Eh?"

"In principle."

Gift.

"Eloquence is a gift," remarked the admiring friend.

"It has to be," rejoined Senator Borghum, "Very little of it nowadays is worth paying for."

Nothing Shrieking.

"Mr. Waddleigh, a lady outside says she is soliciting funds for some worthy cause or other and wants you to give until it hurts."

"Return to the lady, Mr. Squills, and tell her the giving pain I acquired during the war has become chronic."

JAMAICA PLANS TO BAR CHINESE

Worried Over Rapid Increase of Yellow Population.

IS UNDER BRITISH CONTROL

Already Has One Race Problem in Preponderance of Negroes Which Make Up Fully 95 Per Cent of the Population—Much of Country Undeveloped, and That Under Cultivation Is Largely in the Hands of Negro Peasant Proprietors

Stringent restriction of Chinese immigration to Jamaica announced because of the rapid increase of its yellow population draws attention to this most important of the West Indian units of the British empire which may be taking advantage of our own experiences with orientals in Hawaii. This bit of British territory near our own shores is the subject of the following bulletin from the Washington D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Jamaica already has one race problem, says the bulletin, for it is might almost be called an African island with a thin veneer of British government, so great is the preponderance of negroes in the population. Of the approximately 858,000 inhabitants fully 95 per cent are blacks or mulattoes, and the numbers of the dark skinned races are still further increased by the presence of about 20,000 East Indians. Barely 2 per cent of the population consisted of whites in 1911, and at that time the Chinese were less than 1 per cent.

Isle of Fountains.

"Jamaica like Hawaii lies just in the edge of the tropics, and nature seems to have intended it to be a fairy island. Heavily wooded mountains occupy much of the interior and among them countless streams tumble. 'Xaymaca' the native Indian name of the island, which has been Europeanized, means 'Isle of Fountains.'

"Palms of several sorts including cocoanuts, bamboo, bananas and a wide variety of other tropical trees clothe hillsides and valleys. Some of the views from the high central hills over rough foot hills, valleys and plains and out to the deepest of blue seas, are hardly to be surpassed elsewhere in the world.

"But there are other aspects to Jamaica than beautiful scenery. Much of the country is undeveloped and that in cultivation in the interior is largely in the hands of negro peasant proprietors, who tend their few fruit trees, their yam gardens, and their patches of the 'root that made Jamaica famous'—ginger. Many gaunt chimneys stand in the plains to mark the sites of sugar plantation manor houses of the island's palmier days. Along the coastal swamps swarms of mosquitoes attack workmen and wayfarers.

"Kingston, the capital is almost as much a black man's town as Port au Prince. The two white persons to every hundred negroes who nominally are a part of the city's population live in special suburbs and manage shops and the larger enterprises and the streets are given up almost entirely to negroes. Even the police men and many of the judges are black.

"Jamaica's history has in many ways been like that of Haiti but it has stopped short of the Haitian climax. Columbus discovered the island and called it Santa Gloria. For a century and a half it was Spanish then it fell to a British expedition sent out by Cromwell. Port Royal its chief port became the rendezvous of British buccaneers under the leadership of the notorious Sir Henry Morgan. The town peopled largely by the men and women who lived on plate gold and gilded by their lusty sport long gained the reputation of being 'the richest and wickedest city' of its day. But like Sodom and Gomorrah it was struck down. A severe earthquake occurred in 1692 and Port Royal its very stones steeped in iniquity slipped into the sea.

Becoming Island of Bananas

'Under Spanish exploitation the Indian inhabitants of Jamaica were killed or died. The Spaniards brought in some negro slaves to replace them and in the Eighteenth century British plantation owners imported more than 600,000 Africans building up a large sugar and rum production. When slavery was abolished in 1834 many of the white landlords left the island and numerous large estates and mills were abandoned. In late years Jamaica has become more and more important factor in supplying bananas to both British and American tables. Its advantage over the Central American banana countries lies chiefly in the fact that it is two days nearer the markets.

'The British have given some measure of self government to the Jamaicans but have retained final control. A governor is appointed by the British king and presides over a legislative council of which 15 members are appointed and 14 elected. Elected boards in the 15 parishes administer local affairs.

CARGOES THAT SAILORS FEAR

Either Sugar, Coffee or Cotton Are Considered Far More Dangerous Than Dynamite

At first thought it would seem that dynamite was a cargo to be carefully avoided but from a sailor's point of view there are far more dangerous cargoes. He heads for in taking a cargo of sugar. For hundreds of tons of cane sugar in bags in the hold of a vessel and let the ship steam through a spell of hot weather. The odor is appalling. The sailors cannot get the sweet taste out of their mouths and crave vinegar or lemon juice—anything sour. They lose their appetites and are always glad when a voyage on which the cargo was sugar is over. Coffee is as disagreeable as sugar in addition to being very dangerous.

Cotton is a really dangerous cargo if a little oil happens to touch raw cotton the result is spontaneous combustion. A single bale of cotton saturated with such an oil as boiled linseed and lying at the bottom of the hold can be compared only to a slow match attached to a bomb.

Acids and other chemicals form dangerous cargoes. Carbide of calcium for example is more dangerous than dynamite. Acetylene gas is made from this chemical and the gas is constantly given off if the product is exposed to air.

REFLECTION IN ONE'S TRUST

Belief in Another's Goodness Well Explained as the Sympathetic Affection of Our Own

Trust is the belief in another's goodness on the inspiration of your own. The moment you ask for other grounds than this and withhold your reliance till it can rest on external proof you cease to trust and stipulate for knowledge. On the other hand if the confiding temper is so dominant as to blind you to opposing evidence and refuse the correction of positive experience it becomes a weak credulity. In both extremes the pure soul breaks with the clear intellect becoming its slave in the one case and its tyrant in the other. The genuine sphere of trust is found in neutral instances where outward proof is absent or in equipoise and the presumptions of right affection have the undisputed field to themselves. And even then it is not a mere arbitrary hypothesis pleasantly flung across the gap of ignorance to veil it with a curtain of painted cloud nor a mere willingness to live in a happy delusion till the roud winds of reality shall dissipate it but with the quick instinct by which a pure heart recognizes purity and love catches the eye of love. So that in its true exercise trust is the intuitive apprehension of the divine goodness by the sympathetic reflection of our own.—James Martineau.

At the Theatres

THE SOISSON.

"BLIND HEARTS" is being shown today and tomorrow at this theatre. The story is of the type which has made Bosworth the most admired portrayer of rugged fellow men roles there is on the screen. Starting in the gold fields of Alaska where he goes through thrilling adventures in a successful quest for gold it develops into a tense dramatic story when he makes a discovery that indicates that his wife and his best friend have betrayed him.

The production has in added interest in that it marks the screen debut of Madge Bellamy a young actress whose ability so attracted Thomas H. Ince the noted producer that he has put her under a long term contract under the confident belief that she will develop into one of the most popular actresses on the screen. In Blind Hearts she heads the cast in support of Mr. Bosworth.

The opening scenes are some of the most beautiful snow storms ever filmed. They are taken in the icefields of the Bering Straits. The final scenes were filmed in an open boat during a terrific storm in San Francisco Bay.

Wednesday and Thursday "Pilgrims of the Night" will be shown.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"ANY NIGHT" the feature picture today and tomorrow at this theatre presents Robert Edeson in the stellar role.

Built around a sweet little baby boy just past the toddling age with a beautiful young mother of wonderful character and a father who in spite of many weaknesses wins his way into the hearts of his fellows the powerful story of "Any Night" is in unusual combination of beautiful heart interest and strong gripping drama. Anne Burton the mother makes one friend to whom she can go for encouragement in her effort to save little Bobbie grow up into honest manhood in spite of the example of Jim Burton his father. This friend is the Rev. John Matthews who works among the poor misguided people of the slums through the medium of the little rescue mission where Anne Burton takes Bobbie in her effort to save him out of the atmosphere in which the underworld life of Jim Burton keeps his family. Torn between love for her desire to raise her baby boy far from the wicked influence of his father's underworld companions Anne welcomes the beautiful teachings of Mr. [illegible] and finally consents to accompany him on one more dangerous errand to get very money. Anne learns of their plans and rushes to the home they are about to invade. But not until Bobby has stolen from his crib in the dead of night and is struck by Dr. LeRoy Clifford's automobile does Anne reach the house which happens to be the home of the wealthy doctor who is responsible for the child injury.

Wednesday and Thursday "When East Comes West" with Franklyn Farnum in the leading role will be shown.

THE ORPHEUM.

INNOCENCE George Fitzmaurice Paramount production with Richard Barthelmess in one of the best roles of his screen career is being featured today tomorrow and Wednesday.

The story is a colonial one and deals with the adventures of a sailor who goes to the city to make his fortune and who meets with temptation in its most appealing guise and gives way to pleasure only finds misery. But love which has followed him beckons him home again where he finds happiness and the love he had sought. The picture is quite charming and a reminder of Lillian Gish's best work.

Mary Fuller in the lead who did excellent work are John Milton Marjorie Daw Edna Wheaton [illegible] Radcliffe Betty Carson [illegible] Kate Bruce, Nita Naldi and Silvan Fashion. The picture constitutes a veritable fashion show and the gowns investure is of the richest description. It is well worth seeing.

As the screen affords greater possibilities of detail in story than the stage those who have seen the play will have the added interest of seeing just how Picturedrama has been handled. One feature which was added much to its value is the character of Gloom which does not appear in the original play. The part in the antithesis of Intoxication Mr. Fitzmaurice and Mr. Young decided that Gloom would be a modern touch to the theatrical plays that was written before the anti liquor law went into effect.

Thursday Will Le and Will Rogers will appear in One Glorious Day.

In addition to the regular program this week the Orpheum will show interesting local pictures. For today, Tuesday and Wednesday the extra feature shows the Boy Scouts of Connellsville in action. Thursday, Friday and Saturday the members of the fire department respond to an alarm and in other activities will be pictured. Last week the Kiwanis Club was shown.
